

The Examination of the Senior Departments of the Public Schools, in this town, closed on Tuesday evening. The Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity by ladies and gentlemen, all of whom were delighted with the performances, which far exceeded their anticipations.

There was but one thing to mar the harmony and quietude of the occasion, and we refer to this with regret, inasmuch as it proceeded from females; but it was of such an innocent character as positively to recommend a public rebuke. Previous to commencing, the President of the School Committee, the Rev. A. H. Dumont, stated that he was glad to find such an interest aroused in the cause of Education, and that he regretted the House was not larger so that all might be accommodated with seats; that they anticipated that so many would have attended, they would have procured a house sufficiently commodious for all. He then requested that the utmost silence might be preserved, as the voices of the children were not sufficiently strong to be heard throughout the Hall, unless all were quiet. Notwithstanding these kind remarks and this earnest request, the proceedings were interrupted several times during the ensuing fifteen minutes, by females who were laughing and chatting at one of the doors, and this indecency was continued, notwithstanding three appeals were made to them, until a threat was made to obtain their names, and publish them to the community. This had the desired effect. We regret that there are any in our midst so lost to a sense of propriety on such an occasion, and we hope never to witness such an exhibition of ill-breeding again, in a public audience, especially on the part of females.

The exercises consisted of Singing by Miss Roberts' Scholars, reading of Compositions by Mr. Benn's and Miss Roberts' Scholars, and Declaration by Mr. Benn's Scholars. The Compositions were all well-written, and some of them were even beautiful; they were read by the Scholars in a distinct and audible tone. The sentiments indicated good moral as well as in intellectual culture, and the style was modest and correct.

The Declamatory Exercises of the boys belonging to Mr. Benn's School interested us exceedingly. The pieces, generally, were well committed to memory, and were spoken most understandingly. The emphasis was good, in some instances very fine, the gestures were graceful and appropriate, and, in several cases, were perfectly charmed by the appearance and manner of the little orators.

The Scholars of Miss Roberts' School have published a little paper, in M. S. S., during the term, called "The Regulator." It was very neatly written, and the articles were all composed by the girls. In order to give an idea of the character of the compositions, we select two articles from it, which are very creditable to the authors:

PASSING AWAY.
I have gathered this beautiful blooming bouquet in the light and smile of a soft summer day. And yet on its rose-colored blossoms I trace the saddest sentence I find would utter—
"Passing Away!"

I have gazed on the rainbow of various hues, which arches over the sky of celestial blue; and while I was gazing its colors grew dim, And again the words came to me a funeral hymn—
"Passing Away!"

I have gazed on the lovely, the gifted, the gay, As they flung to revel in Vanity's way; Yet there was a tone which swept by on the gale, It solemnly, gently repeated the tale—
"Passing Away!"

And though in bright visions they may range, The radiant morning never may change; It is written on every beautiful flower, In the breath of the Summer, the death of the hour—
"Passing Away!"

We shall follow the flowers at the death of the year, When the bed blast is sweeping so solemn and drear, But to bloom in a flower, unimagined in Spring, Where the bright sun no more will unmelancholy ring—
"Passing Away!"

READING.
Reading is a recreation which we may enjoy without interfering with the pursuit of others. It is always easy to take a book, and retro from the cares of the world; after our own endless pleasure in its pages, without obliging any one to participate. Still, I can conceive no happier employment than two intelligent minds pursuing the same volume, marking the same passages of striking beauty, and drawing delight and improvement from the same source. Reading in company with a friend has, also, the effect of harmonizing the feelings, and of blending discordant tastes, or weaning away selfish prejudices; for while we admire an author's sentiments, it leads us to cultivate our own more carefully. Our Grammatical taste is improved; we are disposed to act as critics; to question the propriety of this phrase, or of that sentence; for we are unwilling to allow a single fault in the author to pass unnoticed. Reading wonderfully improves the understanding; we may meet with a word we do not quite comprehend; we consult our dictionary, (the companion, of course, of our reading hours), and the simple explanation of the word often leads us on in a train of pleasant and important truths, never dreamed of before. A proper taste for Reading should be encouraged as one of the most important means of self-education, and, consequently, a formation of character. The opinion of the authors themselves will have a great influence over our own; but pure and generous sentiments, for instance, can we find in the infatuated novel reader? The volumes with which he has so much captivated have given him false views of the world and of his own heart; they have made him a fairy tale; they have painted in glowing colors, imaginary sorrows and imaginary pleasures; and no wonder he is dissatisfied with all around him when he awakes from his day dream, and finds himself surrounded by Reality; the ideal world, in which he has lived so long, has given nothing substantial, nothing satisfying. How important, then, we select such books only as will improve and elevate the mind, and such, too, as will give us right views of the world and of ourselves. That reading improves our conversational powers, no one will deny. If then, we desire the society of the learned and intelligent community, we must prove it by seeking improvement, and that universal improvement which will lead us to express our own thoughts with beauty and ease. By pursuing a method in reading of course, it becomes a task; but, by no means, an irksome one. Drowning beauty will appear by degrees on every page and in every line, and it will seem not a task, but a pleasure.

In conclusion, we have only to say that the Exercises throughout have been of a very creditable order, reflecting much praise upon the School Committee and the Teachers, the latter of whom are incessantly devoted to their honorable and important profession. No man in this community has ever devoted himself with such assiduous and disinterested energy to the cause of Education as the Rev. A. H. Dumont; being a gentleman of leisure and learning, and feeling a deep interest in the matter, he labors unceasingly for the welfare of the rising generation; and for this the whole community owe him a large debt of gratitude. We hope that the Committee will contrive to have these public examinations at the close of every Term, on a more extended scale, because they serve to increase the ambition of the children, and to arouse deeper interest on the part of our citizens in behalf of Education.

We are indebted to the Hon. Daniel Webster for a very elegant copy of his late speech in the Senate on Mr. Clay's Compromise Resolutions. Also to Hon. Albert C. Green for the President's Annual Message with the accompanying Documents.

We are necessarily compelled to postpone the Municipal proceedings of yesterday, until to-morrow.

The annual election of State officers took place yesterday. The Meeting in this town was opened at 10 o'clock, Hon. Henry W. Cranston, Moderator.

Seth W. Macy and John Alfred Hazard were nominated as candidates for Senator, and the polls were kept open during the day. The following gentlemen were elected Representatives, without opposition:—Messrs. Henry W. Cranston, Christopher G. Perry, Joseph Anthony, Benjamin Finch and Joseph B. Weaver. At the close of the polls the vote for General officers stood as follows:—

Whole No. of votes,	333
For Anthony,	291
For Harris,	14
Scattering,	18
Whole No. of votes for Senator,	384
Necessary for a choice,	193
For Seth W. Macy, (Whig)	257
For John A. Hazard, (Ind <sup>p</sup> )	127
Majority for Macy,	130

At the close of the polls in Middletown the vote stood for Anthony 74; for Harris, 1; Scattering, 1.
National Green, Esq., Representative, in the place of Samuel Gould, Esq., declined.

We were unable to obtain returns from Portsmouth and Jamaica last evening.

COMMERCE.—The Hartford Continent, of Tuesday morning, contains a few more returns of the election on Monday. The State, we fear, has gone against us, although it is not yet certain. There has been no choice of State officers, by the people, and it is not possible yet to say which of the candidates will lead. The Democrats are nearly certain of having carried a majority of the Senators. The character of the House is yet undecided. Thus far, the Whigs gain sixteen members, and the Tories gain seventeen. Net Whig loss, one. In a great many towns there was no choice, on the first day. Election were held in those towns yesterday and as a plurality elects on the second day, all of the vacancies will probably be filled. When they are filled the character of the House will be fixed. —Foreign Atlas.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

PUBLIC AGES.

Passed during the first session of the Thirty-first Congress.

(Private—No. 2.)

AN ACT to carry into effect the convention between the United States and the Emperor of Brazil, of the twenty-seventh day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one commissioner whose duty it shall be to receive, examine, and decide upon all such claims as may be presented to him, and provided for by the convention between the United States and the Emperor of Brazil, concluded at Rio de Janeiro, the twenty-seventh day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, according to the merits of the several cases, and the principles of justice and equity, the law of nations and the stipulations of the said convention. And there shall also be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a clerk to act under the commissioner in the performance of the duties prescribed by this act. And the commissioner and clerk shall, before entering on their offices, severally take an oath well and faithfully to perform the duties thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the said commissioner shall be, and he is hereby authorized to make all needful rules and regulations, not contravening the laws of the land or the provisions of the said convention of this act for carrying the said commissioner into effect.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That all records, documents, or other papers which now are in, or hereafter, during the continuance of this commission, may come into the possession of the Department of State, in relation to the said claims, shall be delivered to the commissioner aforesaid.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That the commissioner to be appointed under this act shall forthwith, after his appointment attend at the city of Washington and organize the commission, and proceed to execute the duties hereby confided to him, and shall give notice in one or more newspapers published in the city of Washington and in such other newspapers published elsewhere, as he may deem necessary, of his appointment to examine and decide the said claims, and requiring the claimants to produce their claims and evidence; and when the said claims are presented, he shall proceed with all convenient despatch to consider the same, and the evidence relating thereto, allowing time for the production of additional evidence as he shall consider reasonable and just; and thereafter shall decide the same, and award the ratable proportions of the several claimants in the sums of money and interest to be received under the stipulations of the convention aforesaid; and within one year from the time of the attendance of the said commissioner in the city of Washington, and organizing the commission, he shall complete and terminate the duties of the said commission.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall cause the moneys and interest thereon, payable to the United States in pursuance of the said convention, to be duly received from the Imperial Government of Brazil, and transferred to the United States, in such manner as he may deem most advantageous and best, and the net proceeds thereof to be deposited in the treasury, and the same are hereby appropriated to pay the awards in favor of the claimants herein provided for.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That on the termination of the commission the commissioner shall report to the Secretary of State, a list of the awards made by him, a certified copy of which shall be transmitted by the Secretary of State to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall from time to time, as they may be received, distribute in rateable proportion among the persons in whose favor the awards shall have been made, all sums of money received into the treasury of the United States in virtue of the said convention and this act, according to the proportion which the respective awards bear to the whole amount received, first deducting such sums of money as may be due to the United States from persons in whose favor the awards shall be made. And the said Secretary of the Treasury shall cause certificates to be issued in such form as he shall prescribe, showing the proportion to which each claimant may be entitled of the amount to be received, and on the presentation of the said certificates at the treasury, as the net proceeds of the sums to be received under the convention and this act may be received, the proportions thereof shall be paid to the legal holders of the said certificates.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the compensation of the commissioner and clerk shall be as follows: To the commissioner at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum; and to the clerk at the rate of two thousand dollars per annum, to commence from the time of the attendance of the commissioner in the city of Washington and to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the President of the United States shall be and he is hereby authorized to make such provisions for the contingent expenses of the commission as he may deem proper.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That so soon as the commission shall be executed and completed, the records, documents, and all other papers relating to the claims in the possession of the commissioner or clerk, shall be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That this act shall continue in force one year and no longer.
Approved, March 29, 1850.

CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 2.
The official business is entirely suspended at the Capitol.

Senators and members of the House are seen in groups discussing the late sad event.

The President's mansion and the executive offices are shrouded in mourning, presenting a solemn and imposing effect.

The Committee of arrangements, the pall bearers—Messrs. Mangum, Clay, Webster, Cass, King and Benton—and the various military and naval residences of Mr. Calhoun this morning, to remove the corpse.

The galleries of the Senate were densely crowded.
The members of the House entered, followed by the Judges of the Supreme Court, the President, the heads of the Departments, Ministers of various countries, &c. &c.

At a quarter past 12 o'clock the coffin, with the attendants, entered, and the members stood up.

Mr. Butler read the Episcopal burial service, and the chaplain from the desk read prayers.

He is now preaching from the 67th Psalm, 7th verse, "I have said we are gods, &c., but we shall die like men."

In the House, the speaker said, in conformity to the resolutions passed yesterday, the officers and members will now proceed to the Senate Chamber, and there join in the funeral ceremonies—which was agreed to.

GEN. WASHINGTON'S PORTFOLIO PRESENTED TO GEN. TAYLOR.—On Tuesday last, the Board of Managers of the Washington National Monument Society, accompanied by G. W. P. Custis, Esq., assembled at the President's House, by appointment, to present to Gen. Taylor the Travelling Writing Case or Portfolio of General Washington, sent to the Board for that purpose by Dr. R. S. Blackburn, of Jefferson county, Virginia. The members of the Board were received by President Taylor in the Circular Reception Room, where had also assembled a number of visitors, who had casually called. The venerable Mr. Custis, as a connexion of the family of Washington, was selected to present this curious relic to the President, and in doing so, addressed him in appropriate terms; to which the President replied in a brief and happy speech.

CHOLERA. Monday, April 1.
Private advices from New Orleans state that the Cholera has again broken out in that city, and it was feared it would assume an epidemic form.
